Seymour Johnson Air Force Base

Seymour Johnson Air Force Base occupies over 50,000 acres in the southeast section of Goldsboro, North Carolina and for more than 65 years has played host to the world's premiere operational fighter units.

Seymour Johnson is a major Air Combat Command base and is the current home of the 4th Fighter Wing (4th FW). The 4th FW has a long and distinguished history supporting numerous aircraft platforms and conflicts and was the first operational F-15E Strike Eagle wing in the Air Force. The Wing consists of four groups and is assigned over 4,300 military members, about 970 civilians and 95 F-15E Strike Eagles.

The Wing provides worldwide deployable aircraft and personnel capable of executing combat missions in support of the Aerospace Expeditionary Force. In addition, the 4th FW oversees all aircraft equipment maintenance and provides standardized weapons loading and academics training in support of the wing's 12,000 sorties and 25,000 flying hours.

The 916th Air Refueling Wing is located at Seymour Johnson and flies KC-135R Stratotanker aircraft in air-to-air refueling missions. With this weapon system, the unit is deployable on a global scale to support U.S. military and NATO allies in air-to-air refueling, cargo and passenger hauling. All squadrons and flights are deployable to support U.S. military interests at home and abroad.
